Coins Of The World

The Standard Catalogue of Twentieth Century Issues

EDITED BY

WAYTE RAYMOND and STUART MOSHER

This important book, compiled largely by the late Howland Wood, Curator of the American Numismatic Society, represents the first serious attempt to catalogue the coins of the twentieth century. Since 1900 the countries and their colonies and dependencies that have issued coins total 181. Because of the lack of literature on the subject only a small percentage of collectors know these countries, or are familiar with the coins that have been issued by them.

Hundreds of coins included have never been recorded or illustrated before for the benefit of collectors. Each coin has been given a number which will enable the collector to arrange his collection in a systematic manner. The book describes over 3,200 different coins and lists the various known dates and mint marks. The principal types, numbering about 1,200, have been illustrated in half-tone. The values given have been arrived at by a careful study of the current coin market and with the cooperation of coin collectors and dealers throughout the world.

The publication, aside from being necessary to the coin collecting fraternity, will be invaluable to libraries, schools and other educational institutions.

Washington and Washington Medals

By STANLEY SCOTT

A Paper Read Before the Westchester County Coin Club.

Reluctantly have I yielded to the request of our president to write a paper on Washington, the first President of the United States. What time could be more fitting than this our February meeting.

The character of this great and beloved man has been, and ever will be, an inspiration to all liberty-loving peoples throughout the world. His colossal monument at the Capital is a fit symbol of his moral, civic and spiritual stature. Our Washington, of iron will and gentle heart, immovable of purpose for the general good, respected and loved by most but feared by that minority that would be an infection on the face of any land.

Washington was born near Pope's Creek, Virginia, February 22, 1732. He lost his father at the age of 10, and in 1752, in consequence of the death of his elder brother, came in possession of the Mount Vernon estate on the Potomac River and other property. The same year he received a commission as major of militia, and in 1775 became colonel and aid-de-camp to General Braddock. On the death of that officer in the disastrous march against Fort Duquesne, Washington conducted the retreat, and shortly after was appointed commander of the Virginia troops. In 1774 he was elected a member of the first Continental Congress, held in Philadelphia, and in the following year was appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental Army, taking command of the forces at Cambridge, July 3, 1775. On March 17, 1776, he compelled the British to evacuate Boston, for which Congress gave him a note of thanks and a gold medal. He was commander-in-chief throughout the War for Independence, and resigned his commission as such December 23, 1783, when he returned to Mt. Vernon. He was delegated from Virginia to the National Convention which met in Philadelphia in May, 1787, to frame the Constitution of the United States, and was chosen its president. He was later elected first President of the United States, and was inaugurated in New York City, April 30, 1789. He was reelected and inaugurated a second time March 4, 1793; refused a third term of office and issued his Farewell Address September 17, 1796. When a war with France threatened us in 1797, he was reappointed commander-in-chief. To the grief of all mankind, he joined his ancestors December 14, 1799 at Mount Vernon.

There has never been a single American who has been so medallically honored as George Washington. I doubt if there has ever lived a man whose portrait has appeared with so many completely different faces. Many portraits, I believe, were purely imaginary. I offer for your observation a few pieces in evidence of this fact. Whereas Baker numbered only 651 pieces, it will be readily understood that varieties, together with various metals used, actually raise this number to almost a multiple. Items not known to Baker at the time of his publication have come to light, and those items that have appeared since the publication of his book in 1885 have given the collector of Washington a fair-size task.

To say which are the most intriguing of this vast collection of medallion portraits would be almost impossible. Many are interested in rarities to the exclusion of others, but to me most fascinating of all are the innumerable rarities of beauty that we find. How truly it has been said that paintings are impaired by time and subject to accidents, while stamps, prints and ordinary reproductions are so easily destroyed. Metal may seem cold and colorless, but the many artists, both obscure and renowned, seem to have outdone themselves, adding, as it were, that great warmth of love and heart to their work. Metal alone approaches the indestructible.

Houdon and Pierre Simon Duvivier made their names immortal alone in the production of that exquisite piece, Washington before Boston.

As before stated, March 11, 1776, Washington succeeded in forcing the British to evacuate Boston. Just eight days later, March 25, Congress met and appointed John Adams, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Hopkins a committee of three to select a proper device for a medal.

"Resolution of Congress: Resolved, That the thanks of this Congress, in their own name, and in the name of the 13 Colonies, whom they represent, be presented his Excellency George Washington, and the officers and soldiers under his command, for their wise and spirited conduct in the siege and acquisition of Boston; and that a medal of gold be struck in commemoration of this great event and presented his Excellency, and that a committee be appointed to prepare a letter of thanks and a proper device for a medal. Monday, March 25, 1776."

John Adams then wrote the following letter to General Washington: "Sir: I congratulate you, as well as all the friends of mankind, in the reduction of Boston, an event, which appeared to me of so great and decisive importance that next morning after the arrival of the news I did myself the honor to move for the thanks of Congress to your Excellency and that a medal of gold should be struck in commemoration of it. Congress have been pleased to appoint me, with two other gentlemen, to prepare a device. I should be very happy to have your Excellency's sentiments concerning a proper one. I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and affectionate servant, John Adams."

General Washington immediately despatched the following letter to Adams: "John Adams, Esq., in Congress: Sir: I am impressed with deepest gratitude for the high honor intended me by Congress. Whatever devices may be determined on by the respectable committee they have chosen for that purpose will be highly agreeable to me. I have the honor to be, most respectfully, Sir, your most obedient and affectionate humble servant."

The obverse, by Houdon is considered by all the finest likeness of our great patriot. It was taken from a cast at Mount Vernon in October of 1785, undraped but facing right; beneath bust, "Du Vivier Paris F." Legend, "Georgio Washington Supremo Duci Exercituum Adsertori Libertatis, A Base, Comitia Americana." Size 57.

The reverse shows Washington and his staff mounted on an eminence in the distance. Boston being evacuated, in middle ground, American troops waiting to take possession; to the right a fort, and near it two cannons, on one of which is inscribed, "Duviv." Legend, "Hostibus Primo Fugatis." In exergue, "Bostonium Recuperatum XVII Martii 1776." Size 43.

The original in gold was purchased by fifty citizens of Boston for $5000.00 and it is now under the custodianship of the Boston Public Library. I offer for your inspection several varieties of this medal.

The beauty of the Independence medal, by C. C. Wright, is indisputable.

Obverse, undraped bust of Washington, by Houdon, facing left. "George Washington" in two parallel lines divided by bust. Edge of bust, "C. C. Wright D & F." Size 57.

The reverse is a superbly engraved copy of Trumbull's picture of Congress of 1776 and the committee making their report of the famous declaration. Above is inscribed "Declaration of," and beneath, "Independence July 4th." Near edge in curved line, "C. C. Wright, Fecit." Remarkable electrotypes of this piece have been found. Colonel Trumbull, a great patriot, soldier and artist, was called Brother Johnathan by General Washington. Mr. Baker places this piece second in importance to Washington before Boston. I am sure that he would not have us construe his classification to include rarity, as he clearly states that the Independence medal is far more rare. The Boston medal was the first voted by Congress for Washington.

We who are collectors of Washingtonia will ever feel a deep debt of gratitude to Mr. Baker, who in such a thorough and capable manner left to posterity a published record that will ever be cherished by us all.

I beg your forgiveness if I have devoted more words to the eulogy of our greatest national leader, the immortal Washington, than to the topic assigned me. Nations are in the throes of hate, and war in its awful and incalculable destructiveness is again stalking the earth. Well might we ponder on the philosophies of Washington, in fact his whole unselfish life. My prayer tonight, in which I know you all will join me, is that the mantle of our Washington will fall upon the shoulders of our President, bringing him wisdom, courage, and an understanding heart, breathing peace and union to the discontented factions, with the love and cooperation of a great people and the golden sunrise of a real and enduring prosperity for tomorrow.

"You Don't Have To Be Sane, But It Helps"

By PAUL PENNINGTON

Read Before the Chicago Coin Club, March 2, 1938.

In the October, 1937, American Legion Magazine was an amusing article on stamp collecting, entitled "You Don't Have To Be Crazy, But It Helps." I have changed this title somewhat to fit these suggestions for ways of collecting coins that seem to me to be conducive to sanity, assuming that sanity is possible in the riding of a hobby.

Of course the justification for a hobby rests solely with the rider. No regimentation is desirable, for most men turn to a hobby as one field in which they are their own lords and masters, at least as far as time and money will permit. After a day at the office doing what the boss wants done and in the way he wants it done, an evening doing as one's own fancy dictates is a welcome relaxation.

The following ideas are presented, not as an attempt to regiment the thoughts of others, but perhaps to open some eyes to a new viewpoint from which to see our hobby.

One suggestion is to study the coins themselves more intently; twenty coins well known may be of more interest to yourself and others than a hundred of which little is known. Going back for a moment to "horse-and-buggy" days, think of Yankee Doodle's complaint that he couldn't see the town because there were so many houses. Sometimes I wonder how many are so wrapped up in mint marks and dates that they cannot see their coins. We have handled Lincoln cents for nearly thirty years, but how often do we look at the splendid portrait of Lincoln? How many collectors know why Victor D. Brenner came to design this coin and what other works of art he produced? I hazard the opinion that some time spent along such a line might give more pleasure than an uncirculated cent of a "wanted" date and mint mark added to a collection.

Mr. Evans's talk some time ago on trade dollars illustrates what I am trying to bring out. He not only had the dollars, but he knew the circumstances surrounding their issue.

Coins in themselves are interesting, but if studied in connection with the civilization of which they are a part they become much more fascinating. Much can be learned about the users of the coins from the coins themselves; in fact, coins may be considered as official documents and therefore as sources of history. Of course I am not so naive as to think that the history of a nation could be written from their coins, but some things can be so learned and many points of history will be brought into sharper relief by reference to coins. For example, ancient histories usually treat of Greece, then continue with Rome. Now the overlapping of these two cultures are explained, but it was never driven home so forcibly in my own case until I had studied Greek and Roman coinage together chronologically and could see the actual coins of both peoples from the same periods and study their similarities and differences. While I had read of the Greek colonies or states of Southern Italy and of Greek temples there, the great number of these states which have struck coins made more of an impression than what I had read. The term "Magna Graecia" means much more to me now than formerly.

It so happens that an artistic people generally struck beautiful coins; coins thus give us a measure of the artistic ability of place and time. Compare our present quarter dollar with those in use at the beginning of this century; could anything give a clearer indication of the trend in art from 1900 to 1937? Or compare some of the early British gold staters with a piece of Queen Elizabeth, and not much doubt will be left in your mind that Britain had lost something fine artistically although much may have been gained in other directions.

Coins can form a compact museum that will tell much. My collection of about eighty pieces, which can be carried in one hand, shows substantially what a large collection of all forms of art would show, and extends from the sixth century B. C. to the fourth century A. D., a range of ten centuries.

A study of the subjects used on coins will indicate much of what was in the minds of the users or what their rulers wished to be in their minds. Disregarding portraits of rulers, the subjects chosen for Greek coins are almost entirely religious. This was not an accident; religion was an integral part of the civic life of the Greeks. Athena was not a distant goddess to the Athenians, but a very real protector of the city. Many subjects, however, can be classed as propaganda. On Greek coins this was usually confined to the head of the ruler, although on early coins even this was rare, his name alone being inscribed by a figure of a divine being. There may have been some attempt on early Greek coinage to picture the ruler as a divine being in some cases, although this was rather foreign to the workings of the Greek mind uninfluenced by Oriental ideas. This Oriental influence can best be seen after Alexander's time in Syria, where rather long titles for the ruler were used containing epithets indicating the association of a ruler with a god.

Roman imperial coinage shows many examples of propaganda. We find a head of a Roman emperor on the obverse, with reverses showing a distribution of corn to the rabble, or the empress at an altar making vows for the welfare of the empire, or a figure commemorating the addition of new territory to the empire with the resulting booty.

C. T. Seltman, in his "Greek Coins," starts the book with the following terse definition of a coin:

"Metal when used to facilitate exchange of goods is currency; currency when used according to specific weight standard is money; money stamped with a device is coin."

Now if this definition is correct, what is the status of commemorative coins of the United States? Has anyone ever used, or seen used, "to facilitate exchange of goods" a commemorative, other than the Columbian half-dollar? If the way in which these commemoratives are distributed seems wrong, or the things commemorated seem trivial, why grumble? There is no law requiring their collection, and the world is full of coins issued to fill real needs of trade which can be collected. There are so many different phases of civilization which can be illustrated by coinage that there is no need for all numismatists to collect in the same groove.

For a collection to hold our interest permanently it seems to me that it must allow considerable thought to be devoted to it and that it is therefore necessary for it to be more than a number of miscellaneous coins kept in one box. If the coins are chosen to tell some sort of a story, they then become part of a whole and acquire more meaning as such than the sum of their meanings individually. The choice of the story will vary with the interests of the collector, and there is almost no limit to the possible subjects around which to build a collection.

In a few words, the foregoing has been a plea for more study of coins and their relation to the civilization of their times, less emphasis on minor details, a greater diversification of the field among different collectors, and, above all, the formation of collections which are planned, and have not, like Topsy, just "grewed."

American Decorations

By THEODOR HENTGEN
The Bronx, N. Y.

On Fame's metal charts
Heroes' names are cast;
Piously the nation guards
Her glory of the past.

No reward is dearer to a person's heart than a decoration bestowed by his Government or his fellow-men for brave deeds in the line of duty. Next to the approval of God and our conscience, the approval of our fellow-men must ever remain the incentive to great and noble deeds. The object of all patriotic societies is to perpetuate the memory of some worthy cause, to promote the principles of our ancestors, the acquisition and protection of historical spots and the erection of monuments. In order to make American collectors decoration conscious, some of the most popular American decorations are shown and described here:

No. 14.

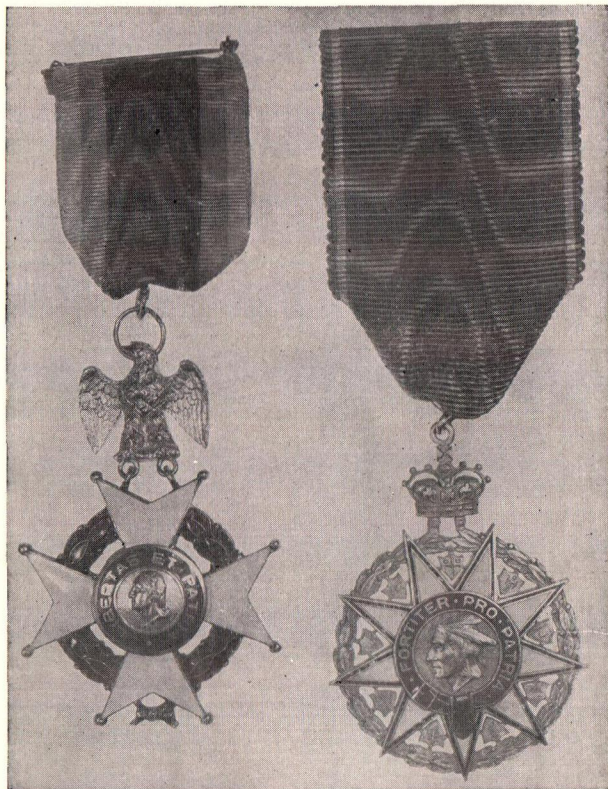

No. 15.

No. 14—The object of the naval and military order of the Spanish-American War is to cherish the memories of the war with Spain and to promote ties of fellowship and sympathy among those who participated in the war; also, to promote allegiance to the United States and to maintain the national honor.

No. 15—The Society of the Cincinnati was founded by the American and French officers at the cantonments of the Continental Army on the Hudson at the close of the War for American Independence, 1783. This decoration was described in the March, 1934, issue of The Numismatist by Major Edgar Erskine Hume, U. S. Army.

No. 16—The purposes of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution are declared to be patriotic, historical and educational and include those intended or designed to perpetuate the memory of the men who, by their services or sacrifices during the War of the American Revolution, achieved the independence of the American people. The Society also marks the scenes of the Revolution with appropriate memorials. The decoration is held in high esteem by the members.

No. 17—The Society of Colonial Wars has been instituted to perpetuate the memory of those events and of the men who, in military and naval positions and responsibility, by their acts and deeds, assisted in the preservation of the Colonies in America. The Society collects and preserves relics and records of the period between 1607 and 1775 of the founders of the nation. Members are those men and women over 21 years old lineally descended, in male or female line, from an ancestor who served as a military or naval officer, or as a soldier, sailor, or as a privateersman for the Colonies, or held office in any of the Colonies between 1607-1775. This decoration is highly esteemed by members and is seldom seen in the market.

No. 18—The object of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is to perpetuate the memory of the spirit of the men and women who achieved American Independence, the protection of historical places and the erection of monuments; the preservation of documents and relics and the celebration of patriotic anniversaries. The emblem is a gold spinning wheel surrounded by thirteen stars, with a blue and white ribbon. The decoration was created on October 11, 1891.

No. 19—The Society of the Sons of the Revolution was instituted to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the naval, military and civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts or counsel, achieved the independence of the country, and to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birthday of George Washington. Members must be 21 years old and descendants of one who, as a military, naval or marine officer, soldier, sailor or marine, in actual service under the authority of any of the thirteen Colonies of States or of the Continental Congress, remained always loyal to such authority, or descendants of one who signed the Declaration of Independence.

The History Of Coins

By DAVID KATZ, M. D.

A Paper Read Before the Pittsburgh Coin Club.

The earliest civilization was content to live with all the things at hand. Raw materials provided all the necessities of life. Primitive man made weapons and tools out of materials provided by nature—stone, bronze, iron, etc.—progressing with his increase in the knowledge of these various materials. With weapons he hunted and fished. Protection of himself and his possessions was necessary. At first he inhabited natural caves. From these, with tools he made, dugouts were built, and later crude shelters, in which he might live more securely. Then he trained animals and developed transportation in one crude form or another.

At first our primitive ancestors were content to live and let live. But, as man is wont to do, not being satisfied with what he had, went in search of the possessions of others. The rule of "might is right" prevailed. This rule still holds true in a more civilized way, however.

Among the first peoples, the earliest form of exchange was probably between members of the tribal groups—one had something the other wanted. Instead of taking it by force, refinement of living in group life proposed that an exchange was the proper method of obtaining the wanted object, whether it be animal, wife or slave. This was the so-called barter system.

Then one person accumulated an abundance of materials of one sort or another and exchanged with those desiring general commodities. Thus, general commodities began to serve the purpose of money. Each community had its own medium of exchange.

The money standard of wild-animal pelts then changed to domesticated animals. Cattle became the medium of exchange. They provided food, shelter and means of transportation. Grain also served as a common medium of exchange.

Rings and bracelets were the first known metallic media used for money. It is so mentioned in the Bible. The Egyptians were known to make rings of their wealth so that they might better transport them on their bodies. Homer refers to a bar of brass equal to so many oxen. The shekel of the ancient Hebrews was not a coin, but meant a weight.

Iron, copper, lead, silver and gold were in use from the beginning of written history. Metals, because of their compactness, utility, and scarcity, became the medium of exchange. The Greeks used metal bars and called them obolus. These appear like an ordinary "spit." A handful of these, about six, were called a drachma. The drachma is still a Greek monetary unit. Julius Caesar records that bars of iron were used as money in Britain in 200 B. C. Iron bars were used by the early Norsemen, as was gold wire. In Africa, metal bars continued as a medium of exchange.

The next step in the development of coins was stamping bits of metal. This came in the form of a given metal, of a given weight, and a fixed alloy stamped with the authority issuing it. The exact origin of this process is unknown.

Modern authorities attribute coinage to the Lydians, a wealthy and powerful race of southwestern Asia Minor, about 700 B. C. Their first money was electrum, an alloy of gold and silver. Croesus was the first to coin these metals separately. The first coins were globular, or bean-shaped, and bore the imprint of one or more punches on one side only. The other side merely showed the rough marks of the anvil. The next step was a design, symbolical of the place of issue, cut into the anvil, where the coin was hammered. Such coins were found within the first century of their original issue in Asia Minor, Greece, the islands of the Aegean sea, Sicily, southern Italy, and Cyrene (Tripolis). Egypt did not follow for several centuries.

This early coinage has had its effect even upon present-day coinage. The English sovereign, shilling and penny correspond closely to the ancient Grecian stater, drachma, and obolus. When the name of the people or rulers was placed on coins, it was in the genitive case, for example, of the Syracusans or of Alexander, etc.

The manufacture of coins next evolved was the primitive method of pouring molten metal into clay moulds. The metal slugs were then stamped with a punch. The Greeks improved this by reheating the blank coins and placing them between metal dies, which were then struck by a hammer, at times requiring several blows to bring out a high relief. Crude as this method seems, some of the most beautiful coins known to man were struck by this method. In the later decadent period of civilization, metals were hammered into a thin metal plate, from which discs were cut by means of shears. A metal punch was applied, the edges were filed, and the coin was ready for circulation. The next step was the rolling of the metal between two cylinders to obtain a plate of a uniform thickness. This period was followed by a recession or deterioration in culture and refinement with the return to the more primitive barter system.

In the fifteenth century the Renaissance period brought a revival of coinage. To improve and speed the manufacture of coins the year 1547 brought the rolling mill and screw press of Italy. This method quickly spread to other countries. The eighteenth century brought the steam coining press of Boulton and Watt. Later came the knee-joint press of Ulhorn and Thonnelier. The first coin with a lettered edge was one of Charles IX of France in 1573.

The earliest coins of Greece were of simple designs—a seal or stamp of its weight and purity. Then came the first letter or letters of the peoples issuing it. About the fourth century the religious motive prevailed. Athens was said to be founded by Cecrops. They adopted Athena, also known as Minerva, as their goddess, and the owl was accepted as their insignia. While Athenian coins were not the most beautiful, they contained the purest metals and the most honest weight. The portraits of rulers succeeded those of deities on coins. Ptolemy III, 323 to 285 B. C., was accredited as being the first to appear.

The denarius was the first great coinage system of the Romans, following the quadrigatus and the cast bronzes. These coins preserved for posterity the representation of implements, weapons, costumes and buildings.

China's contribution, following the usual system of barter, was that of cast bronze of two types; first, miniatures of weapons, implements, or weights; secondly, round coins with a square hole in the center. The round-holed coin is thought to have originated by the inconvenience of the knife coin. This coin was shortened until only a round end with a round hole remained. The first coins of China were thought to have appeared between the twelfth and seventh centuries B. C. All were cast in moulds. The first modern mint in China was established in Hongkong in 1866. Silver was long prevalent in shoe-shaped ingots, but more recently it has been coined similar to all other modern moneys. Local communities still honor various tokens of metals, ivory, jade, porcelain, bamboo sticks, etc. In the more remote parts of China, bricks of tea and bars of salt are the accepted media of exchange.

In Africa the native does not care for coined money, and it is not used at all in the interior. He desires that it be useful as well as of legal value. Cowrie shells represent the earliest coins; then came glass beads, which were introduced by European traders. Each tribe manufactures a distinctive type of coin. For example, the Gizas of French Guiana make bars of twisted metal with one end flattened and the other like a double tail.

Rings, hoes, copper wire, etc., are highly prized as money. Giraffe, elephant, zebra, and rhinoceros tails were valued highly as media of exchange. Ethiopia, the oldest Christian nation in the world, still uses the barter system mainly, in spite of a coinage originated by King Menelik. The only coin universally accepted here is the Levant thaler of Maria Theresa, dated 1780, and it is still coined from the same original dies. The South Sea islands present many odd and curious forms of money. For example, the island of Yap, where large stones measuring 22 inches in diameter and weighing 45 pounds will purchase a canoe, a pig, or a thousand cocoanuts. The stone is quarried at the island of Pelew, 400 miles away, and was first obtained by hazardous journeys in small, unseaworthy craft. These discs range in size from 1 to 12 feet with a round hole in the center. Shells, wild-boar tusks, whales' teeth, dog teeth, ceremonial mats, etc., still continue as media of exchange. Europeans have introduced synthetic dog teeth, which caused an inflation in the island, inasmuch as they were much superior to the normally current honest-to-goodness dog teeth.

As for odd coins, mention must be made of Siam bullet money and porcelain tokens. The copper-plate money of Sweden, issued from 1663 to 1776, varied in size, the largest being 2 feet 4 inches by 1 foot in size. The Kwakwaka'wakw Indians of Alaska used copper plates larger than Sweden, some weighing 100 pounds or more. Each represented 7500 blankets. Siberia, Mongolia, Thibet and Chino-Asian marts used the tea bricks. During the World War, in some parts of Russia compressed cheese was stamped and used as money; small cakes of soap were once legal tender in Mexico. Even today in the Campeche district of Mexico, chocolate discs circulate as money. Coal money circulated in Britain. Other forms of curious money are the silver cho gin of Japan, boat-shaped coppers of Burmah, fish-hooked of Ceylon, hat money of the Malay States, frog-shaped brass coins of the French central Cameroons in Africa, feather money of Africa, the quetzel bird of the ancient Mayans.

While the history of money has not been minutely traced, herein lies the story of many of the coinages of the world. The understanding of these is as essential as the coins themselves. The love of the numismatist for his coins can be readily understood because of the wealth of lore and tradition as a fundamental basis of the art of collecting.

Value of Transportation Tokens

By ROBERT H. LLOYD

PART III

(A Paper Presented to the Washington Convention of the A. N. A.)

Perhaps some of you have attended a recent auction sale and have been surprised to see some coin bug frantically waving a pencil to finally acquire a piece of colored rubber at a price around the dollar mark.

This person is none other than the enthusiast for transportation tokens, one of the younger branches of numismatics. He has just purchased some scarce old token of the nineteenth century used on some early horse car or electric tram. To this collector it is a prize much sought for, but to some conservative numismatist of the old school it is a piece of hard rubber. Still, in all, it represents money, and therefore has a place in the cabinet.

It may be that this enthusiastic collector has paid too much for his token, since few of these are as "rare" as cataloguers would have us believe, and prices of more than one dollar should be looked at askance. One of these rubber or fibre tokens, persistently advertised as "rare," is still to be had from the transit company for ten cents!

Reckless bidding sets up prices that encourage forgeries and copies, and when the leading collectors hesitate to pay high prices one should realize that it is very difficult to establish the rarity of transportation issues. The word "unique" often used to describe obsolete tokens in rubber, celluloid and vulcanite, is sometimes more of a sales talk than an attribute.

The story of the Halifax Ferry tokens is a prime illustration of the manner in which scarce items suddenly become common. A discovery of a box of old horse-car tokens can easily make prices plummet. Being non-metallic, there is, of course, good reason to believe that certain old tokens of the Gay Nineties are difficult to obtain, since many a good piece has perished in the flames of the waste basket. Any metal check or card by virtue of its metal is more likely to be put away or saved from destruction.

On the other hand, some of these early tokens in colored rubber and celluloid were used in recent decades. One favorite set, previously mentioned in these pages is that of Lancaster, Ohio, in four colors. Today they can be had at prices ranging from twelve and one-half cents to twenty cents each, although, of course, there are those salesrooms that offer these at prices as high as sixty-five cents each. Those collectors who are willing to correspond with others who have duplicates will learn prices much more readily than if they confine all their purchases to one source. This applies to coins as well as tokens. Considering all types of token issues, there are very few in proportion to the total varieties that are really scarce enough to command a big price.

Generally speaking, metallic tokens issued in the older days of city transportation should sell proportionately less than the tokens made of non-metallic substances. Almost all of the small-sized tokens issued since the World War, whether obsolete or current, can be had at prices from ten to fifteen cents, with an occasional twenty-cent price for an issue of a very small town.

The special fare tokens, such as child's fares or school fares, ordinarily sell slightly higher, due to the much smaller issue of this style of piece. These ordinarily sell at fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents, with a few of the current emissions available at 12½ cents. Sundry oddities and short-lived issues may sell from thirty to fifty cents. The beginner had best stick to the common varieties, which can often be had in lots of fifty or so at ten cents each.

One of the attractive things about the hobby of transportation tokens is that it is one of the few fields of collecting that has not been exploited. Considering the thousand American varieties, one takes courage in the fact that there are only some two dozen varieties that are off-color or fraudulent, and these are well known. Thus, the largest part of these tokens are made to be used, not to satisfy the whims of collectors. In a day when coins are made as souvenirs, and many postal items are issued as souvenirs of that hobby, it is indeed pleasing to collect a field where the collector is not catered to in the slightest way, and consequently is free from fraud and imposition.

COIN EXHIBIT AT THE NEWARK MUSEUM.

A comprehensive display of Scandinavian coins was on exhibit during March and April at the Newark (N. J.) Museum as a feature of the current Swedish Tercentenary exhibition. It is a part of the Frank I. Liveright coin collection presented to the museum in 1925 by Mr. Liveright, a trustee of the institution. The selection included more than one hundred coins of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, dating from the sixteenth century.

Every Swedish ruler from Gustavus Vasa, founder of the Swedish monarchy, with the exception of his immediate successor, Eric IV, is represented by a coin produced during his or her reign. From John III, in 1568, to Gustavus V, present King of Sweden, the collection shows at least one coin from each ruler. Copper, silver and gold coins are included.

A notable feature of the Swedish collection is its inclusion of four examples of plate-money from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The pieces are stamped in the center and at each corner with an impression bearing the date and the monogram of the ruler. Largest is an 8-daler piece, measuring 12 by 24 inches and weighing 32 pounds, dated 1659, in the reign of Charles X.

Also shown are examples of the Baron de Gortz token money, produced in the eighteenth century in an attempt to rehabilitate the country's finances which had been all but wrecked by the extensive wars carried on by Charles XII. These coins, made of copper, bear figures from classical mythology—Mercury, Mars, Phoebus, etc., and were given in exchange for silver with a guarantee of later redemption in the same metal. The experiment failed and the tokens were later withdrawn, but their showing today indicates the similarity of financial problems in the world in different periods.

Danish coins in the exhibition range from 1563 to 1927 and those of Norway from 1746 to 1910. An interesting feature of the Norwegian collection is the showing of iron coins issued during and immediately following the World War.

Frank I. Liveright has been interested in numismatics for more than forty years, and the collection which he presented to the Museum in 1925 has been added to from time to time, today consisting of several thousand coins, including specimens from every country in the world that has ever made them. Particularly valuable are the German and American collections, the latter including gold pieces in denominations from $1 to $20 from 1795 to 1925. Notable among these are the examples of Pioneer gold, coins privately minted in the gold fields of California, Georgia and North Carolina during early days when gold was being mined in those districts and no Government system was in force.

The Museum plans to show more of the Frank I. Liveright collection early next year as a step in its current series of collectors' exhibitions.

DESIGNS FOR THE NEW NICKEL COIN SELECTED.

It was announced from Washington on April 20 that the winning designs for the new five-cent nickel coin had been selected. The winner of the competition is Felix Schlag, of Chicago. The obverse has a large bust of Jefferson facing left, with "In God We Trust. Liberty 1938" surrounding. The reverse has a view of Monticello, Jefferson's home. Above, "E Pluribus Unum." Below, "Five Cents. United States of America." Three hundred and ninety plaster models were submitted. Coins with the new designs will not be placed in circulation until fall, it was said. Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, was chairman of the judging. The artist-judges were Sidney Waugh and Albert Stewart, of New York, and Heinz Warneke, of East Haddam, Conn. So far this year nickels have been struck only at the Denver Mint.

Editorial Comment—Numismatic News

TABLET FOR COIN COLLECTORS NOT TO BE ERECTED.

Several months ago it was announced that C. Frank Dunn, distributor of the Daniel Boone commemorative half dollars, would submit to the Daniel Boone Bicentennial Commission a plan to erect a tablet to the coin collectors of the world at one of the shrines in the Pioneer National Monument for the part they played in the acquisition of the memorial. Mr. Dunn writes that the plan was submitted, but was disapproved by the commission. He says:

"Our annual meeting was scheduled for last November 2, but I was taken seriously ill in October and it had to be postponed until this February 5. After our treasurer reported the amount of funds we had raised by the coin sale, with which to purchase and present the shrines to the United States, I made a report saying I thought they had sufficient funds to buy the necessary basic acreage and requested that they proceed accordingly, as I desired to conclude the Boone coin sale within three months and go ahead with setting up the national memorial. They acted accordingly, and before the meeting adjourned hours later I submitted a resolution to have them erect the tablet I had in mind. They decided, however, that practically all of the coins were purchased for collecting and commercial purposes, and not as a patriotic contribution to our cause, and, furthermore, that the coins had increased in value rapidly and substantially in the hands of the purchasers; that my proposed gesture, therefore, was unnecessary, and the motion was not considered. I am planning to express my appreciation in an advertisement in the A. N. A. Souvenir Program for the Columbus Convention, with an invitation to collectors to visit Kentucky and see the pioneer national memorial which they have made possible, whether from a patriotic or collecting motive."

specimens from the New Netherlands Coin Company, New York City. The set consists of 10, 5, 2½ and 1 escudo and 50-centavo piece in silver and 20 centavos in copper. The coins are dated 1935 and 1936.

CONNECTICUT NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION FORMED.

For the past year or more numismatists of Connecticut, and particularly those in the southwestern section of the State, have been discussing forming a State organization. Following the regular meeting of the Fairfield County Numismatic Association on February 18, 1938, it was decided to issue a call for a meeting in Bridgeport on March 18, to take action.

The response to the call was enthusiastic. Members were present from the Greenwich Stamp and Coin Club, the New Haven Numismatic Society, and the Fairfield County Numismatic Association, with the officers from each of those organizations among the twenty-six numismatists present. All, but a very few were enthusiastic about forming a State organization.

Oscar G. Schilke, District Secretary of the A. N. A. for the State of Connecticut, who has been very much interested in this project, was elected to the chairmanship of the meeting.

Upon motion by Joseph Kapp, president of the Greenwich club, it was voted to form a State numismatic association. The name of Connecticut Numismatic Association was chosen.

Oscar G. Schilke was nominated to head the new organization, but declined the nomination with thanks. The following officers were elected: Harold M. Sturges, of Fairfield, president; Joseph Kapp, of Greenwich, first vice-president; Earl Surprenaut, of Torrington, second vice-president; Dr. Robert Crittenden, of New Haven, treasurer; J. Norman Crosby, of Bridgeport, secretary.

Mrs. George Billings moved that the president of each numismatic organization in the State of Connecticut which has become affiliated with the State organization as a corporate member be an ex-officio member of the board of governors, providing he or she does not hold any other elective office in this association. In the event the president holds an elective office, the vice-president would then be eligible. Following this it was voted that the board of governors should consist of William Hofmann, of New Haven; Oscar G. Schilke, of Waterbury; and Mrs. George Billings, of Greenwich.

It was voted that the chairman appoint a committee of three to draw up a constitution and a set of by-Laws for the new association, with the present chairman, Oscar G. Schilke, as an ex-officio member. He appointed Mr. Sturges, Mrs. Billings and Mr. Hofmann.

The meeting was followed by the showing of motion pictures of the A. N. A. convention last summer by Oscar G. Schilke.

It was voted to keep the charter open until the end of this year so as to give every collector in the State an equal chance to become a charter member.

A MILLION IS A LOT OF PEOPLE.

(From the Boston Herald, April 16, 1938.)

An old-coin racket, by which 1,000,000 persons, who believed those old pennies in the attic or a 1910 nickel with the Liberty head worn thin were worth a fortune, contributed more than $127,000 in less than a year, has been broken up in Massachusetts by postal authorities and the Boston Better Business Bureau, it was disclosed yesterday.

The operator, who had headquarters at Nantasket Beach and Springfield, has been forbidden use of the mails by a postal fraud order issued again him by John J. Breslin, chief postal inspector of the New England district. The mails were the integral part of the scheme.

In an extensive mail advertising campaign, he offered fabulous prices for certain coins. Respondents were asked to remit 10 cents for a pamphlet listing coins and 25 cents for another catalogue virtually the same as the first.

Those who sent coins to be purchased were required to remit an appraisal fee, or if they desired the return of the coins, 25 cents each was charged for postage, insurance and handling. Evidence obtained by the postal inspectors and investigators for the Better Business Bureau showed that the operator obtained approximately $119,000 from the sale of worthless coin catalogues to 1,000,000 persons through the mails, together with an additional $8150 for so-called appraisal and other fees.

Investigators could not find a single instance where he paid $5000, $2000, $1500 or the $1000 which he advertised many coins were worth. The catalogues cost less than $10,000 to print, it was estimated.

Approximately 77 per cent. of all coins submitted for the high premiums were rejected, it was found. Several instances were disclosed where he paid small sums such as $50 and $45 for coins.

The secretary was instructed to ask for an expression of opinion from the members when he sent out the notice for the April meeting.

After the exhibits there was a discussion on the topic, "Should Coin Clubs Hold Auctions." The conclusions of this discussion were that a club was able to raise a little money by having auctions and that members could dispose of duplicates. Auctions also lead to the collecting of new lines of material by members. Faults of many auctions are that material comes from too few sources, and is often of a poor quality. Though this was not the original purpose of the discussion, it was voted that a committee be appointed to decide upon rules for the offering of material for periodic auction sales.

The topics for the April meeting will be the U. S. dimes from 1860 to 1891, coins and decorations of countries beginning with the letter M, except Mexico, and coins of Domitian. Papers will be read by Mr. Stein and Mr. Charles Wormser. The topic for general discussion will be "Should a Collector Speculate in Coins?"

The resignation of George H. Blake, of Jersey City, was read and accepted. Mr. Needels instructed the A. N. A. proxy-study committee to give a report on their findings at our next meeting on April 7.

Mr. Brisley announced our speaker for the evening and the floor was given to Mr. Hubel. Mr. Hubel spoke on Mark Antony coins. Every member received a photo copy of coins that were mentioned during the talk, and also had a chance to see the coins after the paper was read. Mr. Hubel not only gave a most interesting and educational talk, but his idea of presenting the coins in form of photo copies was really appreciated by every member. Mr. Hubel's complete paper will appear in a later issue of The Numismatist.

Mr. Skowronski asked the members to pay special attention to his next month's report on membership dues and activities.

Thomas A. Wright, 9852 Chenlot Ave., Detroit, was elected to membership.

Sargis, of Western Reserve Numismatic Society, of Cleveland, spoke at length on "Mohammedanism vs. Christianity." This discourse was illustrated by thirty-two gold Byzantine pieces and eighteen silver pieces of Armenian coinage.

There were several visitors from Youngstown present, along with several members from the Western Reserve.

President Stover traced briefly the history of the club since its inception fourteen months ago.

Due to the length of Dr. Sargis's discourse and the interest shown in his collection of coins, the regular business session and club auction was discontinued.

STARK COIN CLUB—Twenty-ninth meeting, April 1, President Stover presiding. There were twenty-three members and guests present.

We had as our guests members of the Trumbull Coin, Stamp and Curio Club, of Warren, Ohio.

There were gold displays by Mr. Folsom, of Warren, and V. L. Oblisk, of Akron.

A special display of "April Fool coins," or coins that have fooled the public, by Herbert W. Walker, of Warren, proved exceedingly interesting.

Sam Kabealo, of Youngstown, had some of the wooden nickels on exhibit.

An auction closed the meeting.

CHAUTAUQUA COIN, STAMP AND CURIO CLUB—182nd meeting, March 9th, President John C. Engstrom presiding.

Members were taken on a tour of the world's coinage, in a paper on "Animals and Birds Depicted on Modern Coins," by John F. Jones, who also illustrated it with many trays of coins emblematic of the animals and birds described. Beginning with the largest animal, the elephant, as shown on the coins of Ceylon, Siam, Mysore and the new issues of Liberia, the paper gave many interesting facts regarding the animal itself and its portrayal on the coins. As an elephant series, the copper coins of Tipu Sultan for Mysore are no doubt the most interesting and extensive in all the world's copper coinage.

The horse has appeared on coins for twenty-five centuries, oftener than any other animal. On modern coins it is the chief emblem on part of the coins of Brunswick, Brunswick-Wolfenbittel and Hanover. With a rider representing St. George or the White Knight, it is depicted on English, Russian, Lithuanian, and other coins.

The lion, known as the king of beasts, has been the favorite device of earthly kings since the beginning of coinage, as exemplified on the coins of many European, Asiatic and African countries. The winged lion of St. Mark appeared for a thousand years on the coins of Venice.

Other animals mentioned were the sacred cow, symbol of Hinduism, found on the coins of Indore; the bear, buffalo, stag or deer, kangaroo, sable, fox, dog and many others. A brief description of the new Irish Free State coins illustrated native animals, birds and fishes of that State.

On the U. S. commemorative coins are shown the native badger, bear, beaver, calf and mountain lion, also what is intended to represent the American eagle in various attitudes, yet not one of them is "displayed" as it was originally prescribed in the coinage act.

Due to the illness of Fenton A. Johnson, the club missed a paper and display of the same subject, as pictured on the postage stamps.

Dr. Charles K. Haynes spoke on the proposed new issues of U. S. stamps.

CHAUTAUQUA COIN, STAMP AND CURIO CLUB—183rd meeting, March 23rd, was a public meeting for invited guests. President John C. Engstrom presided.

Eric Erickson presented the club with a new gavel.

It was Theodore Roosevelt night on the program and former President John O. Bowman read a paper on the life of that great man and displayed several pictures of him as soldier and statesman.

President Engstrom showed the two-kronen commemorative Swedish Tercentenary coins for the Wilmington and Philadelphia celebration in June.

County Treasurer and Mrs. Doty, of Mayville, gave an illustrated travel talk on the Isle Royale and the North Shore of Lake Superior, showing pictures taken on their 1937 vacation trip. It was a very interesting talk and display, thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

BALTIMORE COIN CLUB—The second meeting in March of the Baltimore Coin Club coincided with the third anniversary of our formation on March 17, and in commemoration of the event our meeting took the form of an anniversary dinner. There were twenty-three of our own members present, and we were pleased to have twelve members of the Washington Numismatic Society present. The speaker for the occasion was Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, the Minister from Latvia to the United States, who delivered a very interesting address.

Dr. Bilmanis acquainted us with the currency of Latvia and very graciously distributed small coins of his country to those present as souvenirs of the occasion. He proved a very effective speaker and aroused a great deal of interest among the membership in his native country of Latvia. As an appreciation of Dr. Bilmanis' courtesy the club presented him with a small silk flag of his native country, which, with a United States flag of similar size, occupied prominent places at the speakers' table.

The regular procedure was dispensed with for the occasion, and after the dinner and the address of Dr. Bilmanis, the rest of the evening was devoted to good fellowship and conviviality among those present.

BALTIMORE COIN CLUB—April 7, with sixteen members present.

The chairman of the committee for the anniversary dinner on March 17 read his report.

W. Carroll Mead was elected to membership.

Mr. Duffield suggested that we have an outing at Annapolis during the coming summer, to which the Washington Numismatic Society would be invited. Mr. Perlitz, speaking for the Annapolis contingent, agreed with this and suggested that something might be arranged during June.

This being the last meeting night under President McCormick's direction, he took advantage of the opportunity to thank the various committees and individuals who had contributed to the success of his administration during the past year, and he was given a vote of thanks by the members assembled.

Nominations previously made for officers were closed, and the secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for the new officers, namely: President, W. F. Perlitz; vice-president, Edw. W. Cockey; secretary-treasurer, George Re-guard; librarian and curator, Henry M. Bash; board of governors, Arthur L. Stewart, Philip G. Straus, J. A. Walsh and John M. Cook.

Suggestions were then made by various members for topics of interest for the meetings, and Mr. Perlitz, the new president, promised to do everything possible to make the coming year a successful one.

BUFFALO NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION—March 28th. The 251st meeting was in charge of Mr. Taylor and, as there was little business to transact, closed earlier than usual. Club tokens for 1938 were distributed and proved to be very attractive. Mr. Hopkins was complimented on his selection of brass with a distinctive lacquer finish.

BUFFALO NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION—April 12th. Vice-President Williams opened the 252nd meeting, at which the principal subject for consideration was our proposed visit to our nearest numismatic neighbors at Lockport, N. Y. We were pleased to learn that Mr. Lloyd will be able to be with us more often and has promised to speak at the Lockport gathering on April 27th.

Authorization for printing a 1938 club roster was granted, and the application of Mr. Leo P. Rich was accepted for club membership. A small but satisfactory auction concluded the evening.

Exhibits were as follows:

Mr. Taylor: Two pattern half dollars, dated 1869, struck in copper; Chinese Sun-Yat-Sen silver dollar; A. N. S. bronze medal struck in 1919 in honor of a visit to the United States of the then Prince of Wales.

Visitors to our meetings are always welcome, and so are exhibits. This evening we had the pleasure of meeting H. J. Herrick and viewing his collection of English coins. Starting at a very early date there is a coin for each reign, silver, of shilling size by preference, arranged in a special binder and supplemented with historical data relating to each specimen. The accumulation, arrangement and research evidenced in this display are worthy of highest praise.

TRUMBULL COIN, STAMP AND CURIO CLUB—March 16. Meeting was called to order by President Walker. Sixteen members were present.

The secretary read a communication from the secretary of the American Philatelic Society, setting forth the requirements for becoming a branch. Since it was found that there would have to be five individual memberships before our club would be admitted, the matter was carried over to some future meeting.

J. W. Draper, Henry Bush, and Robert G. Walker were elected to membership.

The secretary reported that since our last meeting one of our members, Mark W. Hammon, had been taken by death. A resolution of respect and sympathy was passed and a copy of it mailed to the member's widow.

It was moved, seconded and approved that in the future in case of a death or serious illness of a member the officers of the club should have authority to order flowers sent at the expense of the club.

It was announced that at the next regular meeting, April 6th, Judge Albert E. Gorham, of Sharon, Pa., a member of our club, would address the club on Philippine stamps and covers.

It was decided that a committee be appointed to receive material for auctions in advance of sales. President appointed Clyde Stillinger in charge of coins, and Robert G. Walker in charge of stamps.

Harrison Ross, Jr., exhibited a cover mailed from Ireland on the anniversary date of the adoption of the Irish constitution.

B. W. Folsom exhibited some Irish coins of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, some of which were later used as money by the American colonies.

Chas. J. Detre, of the committee on new issues of stamps, then outlined the Government's program of new issues as far as he was able to get information at this time.

Fred W. Beck read an article from a stamp publication which described how the picture was obtained which was used on the 5c. beacon air mail stamp of 1928, it having been formed by combining three separate pictures.

TRUMBULL COIN, STAMP AND CURIOS CLUB (Warren, Ohio)—April 6. The meeting was called to order by President Herbert Walker.

A motion having been carried at a previous meeting that a committee should be appointed to work with the Warren Chamber of Commerce on the coming Northwest Territory celebration, President Walker appointed the following: For stamps, Charles Detre and Robert G. Walker; for coins, Clyde L. Stillinger and B. W. Folsom.

It was announced that Dr. Y. A. Sargis, of Cleveland, a native of Armenia, would speak at the next meeting on the difference between the Christian and Mohammedan religions as illustrated on coins. This meeting will be on April 20.

It was decided that any member who wished to bring a new member into the A. N. A. could use the name of the Trumbull Coin, Stamp and Curio Club as a recommending member.

Eighteen members were present to answer the secretary's roll call.

Judge Albert E. Gorham, of Sharon, Pa., then exhibited a very fine collection of Trans-Pacific covers and his specialized collection of Philippine stamps, which contained many scarce varieties. Mr. Gorham entertained the club members with remarks and explanations regarding his collection.

BROOKLYN COIN CLUB—60th meeting, April 6th, with President Reagan in the chair. There were present 18 members and four visitors.

HEART OF AMERICA NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION—March 14. Twenty-seven members and eight visitors in attendance.

Messrs. Ford, Stump and Rowold were appointed as a committee to secure the A. N. A. national convention, and as Kansas City is so centrally located, numismatically minded, and has such a hustling coin club, little trouble is anticipated in persuading the A. N. A. that Kansas City is entitled to the coveted honor.

CHASE BANK COIN SOCIETY—March 17th, President Martin presiding. There were 16 members and seven guests present.

Arrangements had been made for a dinner on this occasion in honor of Mr. Alfred Nilson, a charter member of the coin society, who retired from the bank on March 1. The dinner was held in the secretary's dining room on the third floor of 42 Trinity Place. The tables were attractively arranged with St. Patrick's Day decorations. The highlight of the dinner occurred when a beautiful cake was brought in and placed in front of Mr. Nilson. Around the cake were decorations of various coins, while on top was the following inscription: "Best Wishes from the Chase Bank Coin Society."

Following the dinner the secretary announced that the club had received an invitation from the Westchester County Coin Club to attend its fourth anniversary dinner on April 19. He also announced that United States proof coins, excepting the five-cent piece, were now available from the Philadelphia Mint.

A few exhibits were then made as follows:

Miss Gregory: A complete set of Irish Free State coins of 1928.

Mr. Carpenter: Pattern in copper of Phillip's 5s. 6d. of George III; proof Bank of Ireland token, George III; money weight of William III for Ireland; penny of Cnut in mint condition; groat of Henry VIII; hammered 6d. of Elizabeth; milled 6d. of Elizabeth, small rose; milled 6d. of Elizabeth, large rose; 6d. of Philip and Mary.

Mr. Semple: Gold 5-taler coin of Ethiopia; Bismarck medal in gold.

The president then announced that the door prize, which was a Roanoke commemorative half dollar, was won by Miss Greta Gray.

Mr. Nilson, not knowing of the surprises which were to follow, spoke of his grateful appreciation to the members of the society and friends for the fine dinner which was in his honor and for the lovely cake that was baked for this occasion. Following his short talk Mr. Martin called on Mr. Zerbe, honorary president of the society and Curator of the Chase National Bank Collection of Moneys of the World, to say a few words. He responded with some timely remarks about Mr. Nilson, with whom he had been associated for about ten years. Then, on behalf of the society, he presented to Mr. Nilson a mahogany humidor smoking stand with ash tray to go on top of it. Following this presentation Mr. Martin called on S. Frederick Telleen, second vice-president, to say a few words. Mr. Telleen gave a very interesting talk about individuals retiring from their active business duties, and in most cases the retired man is so busy that there are not enough hours in the day to do the things he wants to do. He thought Mr. Nilson might be doing some reading in connection with his hobby, and as good light is essential for this he presented a bridge lamp to him. The society had one more gift for Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Brown then presented to him a very attractive mahogany ash stand. Mr. Nilson was completely surprised at each presentation and responded with short talks of thanks and appreciation. In conclusion, President Martin told Mr. Nilson that the society would greatly miss his presence at the meetings but wished him joy and happiness in his new surroundings. Mr. Nilson has purchased a small place near Middletown, N. Y., and will move there about April 1st.

After a general discussion a motion was made by Captain Willey and passed by the body to have the next dinner in the main dining room, the secretary to arrange for a private room after the dinner for the business meeting, and the members present to be assessed pro rata for use of the room.

Mr. Nichols expressed his pleasure and thanked President Pond and the members for the past-president's medal given him.

There being no further business, the president introduced Mr. Gifford, the speaker of the evening, his topic being: "Deldir and Her Strange Order." (The substance of Mr. Gifford's address will be published next month.)

At the conclusion President Pond thanked Mr. Gifford and spoke briefly of his acquaintance with one of the present members of the DeSalis family.

Every worth-while newspaper in New York City was contacted and the hobby or feature writer was given the salient points about the I. E. M. C. in a paper prepared by the club's new secretary, Mr. Berliner. The meeting was the largest ever held by the club and there were present over 25 persons.

It was voted that the San Diego Stamp Club be contacted to ascertain the feasibility of having joint exhibitions of coins and stamps at the same places and times.

Applications for membership were received from Mrs. Mildred Brown and Dr. Lena Cresswell.

An exhibition of fractional currency and Confederate States notes was made by the secretary. An auction was held, followed by refreshments.

OREGON NUMISMATIC SOCIETY—Regular monthly meeting, March 14. Twelve members and five visitors were in attendance.

Two new members were taken into the society.

Among the lots offered were: Set of rare Boone (1935-34) half dollars, five Vancouver halves, two Capt. Cook halves, set Cincinnati halves and several pieces of gold.

The club's library was started with a handsomely bound copy of The Numismatist for 1937. President Fouts donated a copy of Scott's Standard Catalogue of United States Coins and Currency.

The speaker of the evening was Dallas Johnson on "Our Money System." Mr. Johnson, a former professor at the U. of W., has been a student of economics for many years and is ably qualified to discuss this subject. He pointed out some of the many ills of our monetary system and suggested some possible remedies.

The display feature for the evening was English coins, of which a large number were shown.

Dr. Moon explained some of the interesting points of the old cents and many varieties of tokens, and President Fouts briefly described the larger pieces.

Some of the coins displayed were as follows:

English twopence and penny, 1797; two gold sovereigns, last of Victoria, 1901, and first of Edward VII, 1902; complete set unc. Queen Victoria coppers, young head; many eighteenth century tokens; beautiful Gothic unc. crown of Victoria, 1847; gold Spade Guinea, Geo. III, unc., 1788, and

Mr. Bonham, a visitor, exhibited four very rare gold mohurs, also one of the first rupees struck at Singapore mint.

ST. PAUL NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION—32nd meeting, April 5, with 45 members and guests present. President Thomas opened the meeting and extended a cordial welcome to all members and friends. He also gave a brief talk on the history of coinage, and Mr. Debbert talked on ancient Chinese coins and explained those he had on exhibit. Mr. Buetow gave a brief talk on commemorative halves.

Exhibits were by Mr. Debbert, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Buetow, Mr. Harkins and Mr. Hubley, and among the rare exhibits was a $5 gold piece 1802 over 1, and a private issue of Bechtler. These coins were issued by the Bechtlers, Christopher and August, from 1831 to 1842. Their mint in Rutherford struck pieces from gold of Georgia and North Carolina to the amount of over $2,000,000. These two rare specimens were exhibited by Mr. Sweney, who is owner of the First Arcade Book Shop.

After the guests viewed all exhibits the meeting was turned into a social affair and Mr. Hagman, one of our charter members, showed moving pictures of one of his recent tours through Mexico, which were thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

WASHINGTON NUMISMATIC SOCIETY—April 4, President Chapman presiding. There were 23 members and four guests present.

President Chapman made some remarks on the beautiful little booklet containing a brief history of the Washington Numismatic Society, the names of its honorary members, a list of the active members, their address and collection specialty, and the constitution and by-laws. The printing of the constitution and by-laws was the gift of our honorary member, Mr. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, commercial secretary of the Embassy of Great Britain.

Remarks were then made by several of the twelve members who were fortunate enough to accept the invitation and attend the annual banquet of the Baltimore Coin Club on the 17th of March. They all expressed what an enjoyable time they had. The speaker of the evening was our own honorary member, his Excellency Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Minister of Latvia, who gave a fine address and at the conclusion of which presented those present with a one santim piece from the first lot coined in 1937 at the opening of the Latvian Mint.

Mr. Vanderwende gave his report on the series of numismatic talks to be given before the different Police Boys Clubs beginning April 11.

Following adjournment E. C. Gerber showed more than an hour's run of motion pictures which he had taken in the Canadian wilds.

Refreshments and a lively auction concluded a very interesting evening.

CHICAGO COIN CLUB—230th meeting, April 6th, William G. Rayson, president, presiding. Seventy-two members and guests were present.

The secretary reported the proceedings of the executive board meeting held March 14th, when it was agreed to redesign the club's seal to show the incorporation date. Mr. Ripstra, having designed the original back in 1919, was solicited to redesign and bring to date a new seal. This he agreed to do.

Mr. Jackson rendered a report on the sale of the club's cabinet collection, showing $62.40 had been turned in to the treasurer's office. For his work in making this profitable disposition of the collection a vote of thanks was recorded.

Mr. Sheldon explained the tentative bids which had been received for the annual banquet and exhibit night. It was agreed to hold the banquet on May 21st at the Atlantic Hotel.

The resignations of Chas. L. Brisley, of Detroit, and Mrs. Corrinne P. Thorson, of Omaha, Neb., were read and accepted. Letters conveying the club's regrets to these members will be sent by the secretary.

H. B. Combest and Joseph Stefanko were elected to membership after having been regularly approved. The applications of Carl J. Kionka, of New York City; Harry L. Deutsch and Harris H. Hornstein were read and referred to the usual committee for investigation.

A communication from A. W. Reeves, A. N. A. 264, of South Chicago, stated he had come across a quantity of trade tokens made for his business many years ago, and will send one to anyone interested on receipt of postage.

Mr. Davis read a paper entitled "Seth Paine and the Bank of Chicago," covering the early history surrounding the founding and operations of that institution. As the promoters and financial backers of this bank were Spiritualists, many unusual situations arose and many strange coincidences occurred on the performances of their medium adviser, who was described as having obtained the advice or directions from Alexander Hamilton's spirit. This paper was much enjoyed and will be turned over to The Numismatist for publication.

Exhibits were made by the following:

Mr. Rosholm—Thirty-three medals and tokens struck by various numismatic clubs and societies, with some from dealers. Three large medals of the old Chicago Numismatic Society and one pattern medal. He explained that with the club tentatively considering the issuing of a C. C. C. medal, his showing of examples in this direction by other clubs would give a greater degree of interest for local members in the subject.

R. Cederlund: Twenty-five different crowns or riksdalers of Queen Christina, 1639 to 1653, of Sweden. A superb and most complete collection of this rare series of Swedish crowns.

D. C. Keefer: A set of three rectangular silver bars of Onnam, China, era Tu Dui, 1847 to 1883, comprising quarter liang, half liang and one liang pieces, showing interesting syllabary markings.

R. E. Davis: Three bills of the Bank of Chicago signed by Seth Paine; $5, $10 and $100 bills of the State Bank of Illinois at Springfield; Henry VIII sixpence, full-face piece, 1546, struck at the Bristol Mint.

Following the regular meeting an auction sale was held with M. Jackson and W. G. Rayson officiating as auctioneers.

CINCINNATI NUMISMATIC ASSOCIATION—March 8. The following were admitted to membership: J. Frazer Douglas, Don Wingate, E. K. Harden, Robt. F. Rubendunst and John G. Fischer.

Mr. Horwitz, who is editing the stamp column each Sunday in the Cincinnati Enquirer, spoke briefly on his plans for the future and was hopeful of being able to combine stamps and coins and eventually have an entire hobby page.

A committee was appointed to select a location and set a date for an exhibit by the members, which should help increase the membership.

Several weeks ago Mr. Melish, a member of the Cincinnati Numismatic Association, entertained with a cocktail party in one of the beautiful studio apartments in the Netherland Plaza. Mr. Melish's party preceded the regular annual dinner of the club, which was attended by about sixty members, their wives and friends. Each person was presented with a gift, with the compliments of the "Third Street Gang."

Mr. Rembold read an interesting letter from a missionary in the Belgian Congo, referring to a curious piece of iron money in the form of a cross, used by the natives to buy wives.

A short meeting was held before the banquet, at which the following were made members: Harry R. Horstman, H. P. Faulkner, Jack Galde, Charles Getzug, Claude Lee Coyle, Edw. Hoemmelmeyer, Max Litmin, J. E. Fox, and Claude Davis Millar.

CALIFORNIA COIN CLUB—122nd regular meeting, April 5th. Twenty members and guests were present. President Gilhousen presided. Following the dinner a short business session was held, after which the speaker of the evening was introduced.

Dr. Pradeau suggested that a letter be written to Colonel Phelps, officially thanking him for his generous offer in obligingly volunteering the use of his home for a meeting. The secretary suggested that he had just learned that Colonel Phelps had been indisposed for a couple of months and therefore had not been able to attend the last two club meetings.

A 1938 library list and an official roster were recently received from the A. N. A., which were duly appreciated and placed in the club library for the use of the members.

Dr. Smith was extended best wishes on his contemplated European trip and admonished that the club expected at least one letter a month from him giving complete details of the journey.

Dr. Pradeau announced that publication of his long contemplated book on Mexican coinage has just been completed.

Upon adjournment of the business session the floor was turned over to Adolph Larson, Jr., who chose for his talk, "Hobbies." A "hobbyist," it was learned, is one who accumulates and studies specimens, and, like the poet, is born and not made. The distinction was also made clear that one who merely accumulates specimens does not have a hobby, he is simply a collector. However, when he studies and becomes thoroughly familiar with them, he becomes a true "hobbyist."

Along with Mr. Larson's noted stories he brought a remarkable exhibit, to use a conservative term. It was remarkable not only for its interest, but for its variety as well. In all, some fifty specimens were included, each with its own story. Mr. Larson demonstrated that he was a true "hobbyist" by the manner in which he related the history of each of the articles. The specimens displayed ranged all the way from a "dobie" coin, from an island off the north coast of New Zealand, and Chinese arrow money of the twelfth century B. C., to a set of enormous hammered silver Russian belt buckles, which everyone took to be something else. Incidentally, the buckles must have served a dual purpose as they were almost large enough to serve as war shields.

At its conclusion, Mr. Larson was given a very appreciative hand for his extremely entertaining talk as well as for his remarkable exhibit.

SELLING COINS AT AUCTION.

I hope that you will correct the false statements and wrong impressions presented by a page advertisement that appeared in the April issue of The Numismatist.

When you sell your coins at auction, the net amount of money realized is certain to be all that the coins are worth, and more than a dealer can afford to pay for them in cash. When a dealer makes a cash outlay for a collection, he must expect a larger per cent. of profit on them than when he catalogues them for auction. It takes time to sell a collection without an auction, and some of the coins would lay in his stock for years. Many of the coins he already has in stock in quantity. He invests his money, and must find the buyers, and must have a fair profit, since his selling price is uncertain. Coins sold at auction command the highest market prices and there is little gambling as to what they will bring. In selling your coins direct for cash, you have to take what is offered for them, or else not sell. Most likely you don't sell them.

As soon as you send in your coins for an auction, it is possible to receive a check as an advance on the proceeds, and this sum ready immediately is usually more than the total amount offered by so-called cash dealers outside of the recognized reputable established dealers. Then you have another similar check paid to you within ten to thirty days after the sale. Sales are held promptly by most established dealers, and there is little waiting. Rarities bring fancy prices in bona-fide competitive bidding. The owner can easily afford to pay a commission to a reputable dealer who conducts an auction on the square and gets true values.

The fact that nearly every large or important collection goes through an auction by an established dealer ought to prove that it is the best method to dispose of any collection. There is no doubt in the mind of the large collector. Auction lots are not sold at ridiculously low prices, and we have letters from collectors on file complaining of the fact that it seems difficult for them to pick up bargains at auctions. The competition is brisk with several thousand leading collectors receiving catalogues. We have on file five hundred unsolicited letters of testimony that prove beyond any doubt that collectors are not disappointed, disillusioned, and disgusted, but that they are entirely satisfied. For some of these we have sold twenty thousand dollars' worth of coins at auction.

I have catalogued and successfully sold coins over a period of many years in one hundred and fifteen auction sales, and several thousand satisfied customers will bear me out in my statements. My customers are preferred collectors, gentlemen of fine character and quality, intelligent and successful business and professional men. They are very willing to pay me five per cent. for executing their bids at my sales and rather than "bid low" on any lots in my sales, I believe they bid high, knowing full well that I will buy coins for them as much under their limits as other actual bids permit.

This letter is written to help to correct some of the statements of the advertisement in question in the minds of the younger collectors in our field. The older and experienced collectors know the situation full well, and never cause any trouble. It is the new collectors who may gain some wrong impressions.

WASHINGTON NUMISMATIC SOCIETY ANNUAL BANQUET.

The annual banquet of the Washington Numismatic Society will be held Thursday, May 19, 1938, at the Hotel Washington, Washington, D. C., at 7 P. M. All members of the American Numismatic Association or local clubs are cordially invited to attend. Those who were present during the days of the 1937 convention are aware of the interesting programs arranged by the Washington society and are assured of a fine one for this banquet. A nationally known numismatic authority will be the principal speaker and an interesting souvenir of the occasion will be presented each one.

The affair will be informal and ladies are especially invited. It is thought that some members of the A. N. A. or local coin clubs may want to enjoy the beauties of Washington during the month of May, the most ideal month of the year for a vacation in the Capital City. The weather is most pleasant, the parks are lavish with their floral displays and the entire city puts on its spring show. Should these members visit our city at this time they will find a warm welcome at the banquet.

KING FAROUK'S WEDDING COINS.

Coins of 2, 5 and 20 piastres of the same design as the 10 piastres of the wedding coins of King Farouk I of Egypt, illustrated in last month's issue, have been struck.

2500 COLLECTORS

The Stowell Printing Co. of Federlsburg, Md., who print The Numismatist, are also the printers for our Auction Sale Catalogs. Any collector is at liberty to write to them and verify that we send out 2500 catalogs or more at each one of our sales.

We offer this advertisement in answer to an "ad." in last month's Numismatist whereby one individual can offer more money for your collection than by means of a Public Auction where 2500 collectors SET A PRICE FOR IT.

Would you or any dealer know the value of a single coin were it not determined by the Auction Sales?

Do you think that BANKERS, STATESMEN, LARGE ESTATES, would have their collections sold at Auction, if they for one moment thought they would realize more from an individual?

Do not be misled. If you have a collection that you are thinking of disposing of, DO NOT let one person set a price. By all means sell it at Auction. There cannot be a more honest and sure way to realize the maximum.

The large volume of business usually done by the Auction dealer permits him to operate on the average commission of 20%, which is about half of what the average dealer makes as his profit.

Do you value the wealth of information you derive from the Auction Catalog? Do you realize the tireless efforts that the Auction dealer goes to in giving you expert knowledge that makes your catalog almost text? We have known of dealers spending almost a week on a coin to get the desired information.

If you appreciate the work that has helped build your collection, and if you wish to dispose of it, then by all means have it sold at Auction, and a successful sale is usually held by Stack's. Write today for reservations for our June Sale, or one of our later sales.

April 15, 1938.

To Whom It May Concern:

If you will refer to page 365 of the April Numismatist you will find that we ran a full-page advertisement entitled "Auctions vs. Selling Direct For Cash."

To our surprise we found that a prominent New York Auction Dealer objected to this advertisement on the grounds of misrepresentation. We quote from his letter: "by misrepresentation you just thought you could steal some legitimate business from other advertisers. A nice piece of work." This same dealer goes on to insinuate that he would be responsible for having our advertising stopped in The Numismatist. Yet, he himself is not a regular advertiser.

We find collectors' opinions are actually the contrary, for they go on to say: "I like your advertisement in the April Numismatist."

We still maintain that we have just presented TRUTHFUL FACTS to the collector. We have left the question open, and entirely up to the collector, just how he should sell his coins, and HAVE NOT MADE ANY MISREPRESENTATION. We are as anxious to purchase coins, and collections, as the auction dealer, and feel that this decision is entirely up to the collector, or seller. The entire advertisement was inserted in good faith.

We might mention that we have been established for ten years, and never in this period have we ever refused to make an immediate refund, replacement, or adjustment on anything sold or purchased, for no deal is complete until both buyer and seller are 100% satisfied.

Look up our advertisement in the April issue, and read it carefully. If you have some coins to sell write us today! Reference: Dun & Bradstreet.

Very truly yours,
